NEW EDITION — Published This Morning of STANFIELD HALL. By J. F. Smith, Esq., author of "The Jesult," Robin Goodfellow," etc. WITH ALL THE ILLUSTRATIONS. This powerfully written fiction embraces one of the most exciting periods of English History—the reign of the Royal Bluebeard, Henry VIII. The high dramatic interest of the plot; the developments of Court intrigues in love and politics; the perils and adventures of the hero and heroine of the story; the rapid, uninterrupted sweep of the narrative, which seems to bear the reader with it, and render him an stamp the work as one of the greatest historic and chivalric Romances since the days of Sir Watter Scott. · Never have we read a book so replete with incident of the most tartling description, and yet/without the slightest shade of enggers ion. Every character is drawn with the strictest historical ac turney, and still they far exceed in luterest any mere creations of the magnations of the most skillful writers of fiction. The book is su erbly illustrated with aixteen of the finest engravings we have ever et, and is altogether got up in a style that reflects much credit

VILLA PLOTS.—The attention of the public is respectfully invited to that splendid property, the well known farm belonging to William H. Morria, E.q., 'ying west of Morrisania Village, and between the Rallroad and Harlem River. Two hundred and fifty acree of this property has been surveyed and laid out into villapious, containing from one to five acree each, with convenient streets and avenues, and is to be sold under such restrictions as shall be deemed necessary to guard against all manner of nuisances and preserve the respectability of the place. This plan has been atopted to meet the wants of those who desire to purchase larger building plots than can be obtained in villages as they are generally laid out, and who wish to locate in some place where they will be protected from those objections which exist in every city and village where the property is sold unconditionally.—It is presumed that no reasonable person will object to restrictions; their advantages have been fully tested in the village of Morrisania. Our only object in this arrangement is to make West Morrisania just such a place as any gentleman or lady would desire for a country residence; here, persons can lay out their grounds, beautify and embediblish them with trees, plants and flowers, in accordance with their own taste. The beauty of this property, to gether with the convenience of the location, as well as the general arrangement, cannot fall or mass it the most desirable of any yet offered to the poolie.
